CASTERLINE ELECTED PRESIDENT OF NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF DEMOGRAPHERS

John B. Casterline, Robert T. Lazarus Professor in Population Studies in the Department of Sociology and director of the Institute for Population Research, has been elected president of the Population Association of America, the main scientific organization in the United States for demographers.

For more than 30 years, Casterline has been investigating the causes and consequences of fertility decline in developing countries. He is a member of the Mershon Center Oversight Committee and an affiliate of Ohio State's Translational Data Analytics Institute.

Casterline will serve as president-elect in 2018, president in 2019, and past-president in 2020.
